Social security within the Americas at debate: towards a 2030 hemisphere-
wide agenda

Context

During the decade of the eighties and particularly in the nineties various reforms to social security schemes were conducted in the Americas, both in relation to pension systems and in the area of medical care services. Additionally, social assistance programs and initiatives now comprise a more relevant component in terms of providing protection to the population which remains outside the scope of contributed-scheme coverage. The aforementioned reforms and attempts to address coverage have yielded an entire spectrum of thoughts, experiences and practices. In fact, many nations are currently reforming or overhauling their social security and social protection systems.

Additionally, the impact of the last decade's international financial crisis is still being felt throughout the economies which comprise the hemisphere and beyond. Recently, leading international financial organisms such as the International Monetary Fund, World Bank and Inter-American Development Bank, have concurred on the fact that economies within the Americas are currently experiencing relatively low performance rates. Furthermore, the prognosis for the near-term horizon is fairly flat.

This scenario has caused a wide spectrum of very tangible ramifications for social security schemes throughout the hemisphere. It has completely restructured expected results and provoked the necessity to generate contingency plans to adjust to the new dynamic, even as it has also provided an opportunity to undertake structural overhauls of the systems in question; particularly pension and healthcare systems, although social protection and assistance programs have also been addressed.

A man in a dark suit is seen from behind, sitting at a desk with a laptop. He is gesturing with his right hand towards a large, blurred audience in the background. The scene is set in a professional environment, likely a conference or meeting. The text "Roundtables sessions" is overlaid on the right side of the image.

Roundtables sessions

Roundtables sessions

Roundtables sessions

---

The roundtable sessions are designed to provide an opportunity to share knowledge and generate discussion on relevant topics within the field of social security within the Americas, by subject-matter experts and key actors within the field.

The specific objectives are as follows:

- Generate a forum for dialogue on the latest advances and challenges to the promotion, management and implementation of social security
- Serve as a platform to gather and expound upon regional initiatives and policies put forth by the Membership and subject-matter experts on issues relating to the management and promotion of social security, as well as other generalized aspects of this issue
- Analyze the latest developments, challenges, causal agents and the perspectives that arise, which allows to restore work strategies and joint collaboration lines.

Objective

The roundtable sessions are a valuable asset to the Inter-American Conference on Social Security whereas they comprise a forum which brings together the membership and key actors within the sector, even as it provides an ideal instance for discussion, collaboration and high-level decision-making.

Through the use of a moderator, it is seldom the discussion will produce a succinct analysis of the current state of affairs within the social security sector within the Americas (especially as regards taking stock vis-à-vis the reforms undertaken in recent years), current reform trends (as well as their causes and aims), as well as challenges in terms of coverage and financial sustainability; i.e., what solutions are being put forth given the current scenario.

As a result, the sessions constitute an opportunity for the Conference to identify the principal challenges, difficulties and preoccupations the membership face as they attempt to design their respective work agendas. They are also of value as member-entities embark on short, medium and long-term collaboration initiatives designed to help the parties involved achieve their aims and objectives.

Within the framework of the social security within the Americas at debate: towards a 2030 hemisphere-wide agenda seminar, three primary issues have been identified as starting points designed to generate active debate between the participants, as well as to achieve the expected objectives and results.

Roundtable I.

Social security systems in the Americas: current state of affairs

Analysis on the current state of affairs of social security systems throughout the Americas, as well as changes observed within recent years, designed to provide an up-to-date snapshot to member-states and other key actors of what actions are being undertaken throughout the hemisphere.

Another element under consideration will be the impact of the international financial crisis and the economic outlooks of social security systems: what has occurred, how the crisis impacted social security schemes, how had they reacted and what are the perspectives for the near-term.

Roundtable II.

The importance of system management in social security

Challenges encountered in social security management and the importance of managing reform processes and initiatives.

Consider challenges encountered of social security systems, including but not limited to: the impact of technology on pension systems and payment of medical care benefits; healthcare system changes and challenges; and, good governance and its relevance to pension and healthcare systems, or the challenges of population aging and increases in life expectancy.

Roundtable III.

Some challenges on social security

In order to make progress in improving social security it requires an adjustment process, modernization initiatives or changes in its management structures and interaction with the target population. Some of these efforts are in future initiatives and the challenge of execution that test the institutional framework and the operational infrastructure.

Nations and entities seeking to achieve progress within the social security sector are undertaking reform processes, modernization initiatives or changes in their management schemes and the manner in which they interact with their respective target populations. Some of these efforts involve initiatives which remain to be executed. Therefore, it remains to be seen if the institutional frameworks, as well as the operational infrastructures, of social security systems are up to the task.

The provision of goods and services to the social security sector has always constituted a critical issue in terms of the leadership charged with management of its systems. In addition to traditional supply chains, globalization and new supply-system strategies, increasing dependence on outsourcing or public-private ventures, have generated a permanent set of challenges and contexts for social security leadership. Additionally, phenomena such as the judicialization of pharmaceuticals, as well as the issue of collusion and the dividing up of markets by suppliers, constitute serious management challenges and alter costs which impact the efficiency with which services can be delivered; and even has a significant impact upon the manner in which reform policy is structured. The following questions merit answers: What is occurring in terms of the provision of goods and services? How are goods and services being provided? What are the repercussions of this dynamic in terms of service-delivery costs and the viability of the strategies being put forth?

A photograph of a person with long dark hair, seen from the back, sitting at a desk and working on a computer. The person is wearing a dark jacket. The desk has a monitor, keyboard, and mouse. The background is a blurred office or meeting room with other people and warm lighting. A semi-transparent blue horizontal band is overlaid across the middle of the image, containing the text.

Presentation of the Longitudinal Social Protection Survey (LSPS): a public-policy planning tool

The survey is oriented to contribute to the presentation of the regional Project implemented by the Inter-American Development Bank (IDB) in collaboration with the Inter-American Conference on Social Security. The survey is oriented to contributing to the institutional strengthening of governments throughout the Americas in terms of the design and formulation of public policy directed at improving funding and social-protection benefits delivery.

The LSPS provides an in-depth analysis of social protection systems in terms of coverage, efficiency and sustainability. It serves as the basis for future reform initiatives, as well as the analysis and evaluation of social policy and programs. The LSPS is currently underway in the following nations: Brazil, Chile, Colombia, El Salvador, Paraguay and Uruguay.

Social Law Commission of the Americas: *Revista Perfiles

During April 18-22, 1966 the XIII Session of the Inter-American Social Security Permanent Committee was held in San José, Costa Rica. The event marked the first time urgency that was detected in terms of creating a new entity entitled Social Law Commission. The body was designed to address the legal and socioeconomic problems of social security throughout Latin America.

The periodical entitled Perfiles was founded by the Social Law Commission, which published its first biannual edition in January 1996. The publication is designed to provide a forum for dialogue between the Member-Entities which comprise the CISS. Its pages provide an opportunity for individuals working within the social security sector to remain abreast of the latest regulatory changes occurring among the membership. Perfiles also provides information regarding knowledge and information which are of interest to the field throughout the Americas.

A man in a dark suit and glasses is seen from the back, addressing a blurred audience in a conference room. He is holding a small device in his hand. The scene is overlaid with a semi-transparent purple band containing the word "Speakers".

Other Relevant Aspects

Entering and departing Mexico

All visitors of Mexico should apprise themselves of the respective immigration and visa regulations, which vary according to the nationality of the individual involved.

Regulations regarding passports and visas change on a fairly frequent basis. As a result, the Conference recommends travelers contact the nearest Mexican Embassy or Consulate before traveling.

Weather Conditions:

This is the season in which Mexico City receives almost all of its annual rainfall. Typically, days begin fairly warm and sunny, and become cloudier as the day goes on. Some amount of rainfall is to be expected every day within August.

- o Average high (August): 76° F / 24° C
- o Average low (August): 55° F / 13° C

Currency And Exchange Rates:

Mexican peso (MXN)

USD $1.00 USD is equivalent to MXN$ 18.50. However, exchange rates may vary slightly.

Voltage:

It is possible to use electrical devices in Mexico City if your country voltage is 110V-127V (such as US, Canada). To ascertain suitability, check the label of the device. Tablets, laptops, cameras, cell phones or toothbrushes with chargers rated at 100-240V, 50/60 Hz can be used anywhere on the planet.

Dress Code:

Seminar, Ordinary General Assembly:
business

Dinner at Castillo de Chapultepec: cocktail

A group of five business professionals, three women and two men, are seated in a meeting. They are all smiling and looking towards the right side of the frame. The woman on the far left is holding a pen and a notepad. The man in the center is wearing a dark suit and a blue striped tie. The woman on the far right is holding a red folder. The background is a blurred office setting with a large window.

General Recommendations

All individuals attending the events being held August 24-26, 2016 within the framework of the XXVIII CISS Ordinary General Assembly are asked to please take into account the following:

- Act prudently and always obey instructions and directives provided by local officials.
  - Always keep a photocopy of passport and ID on hand, in case originals are misplaced.
  - Avoid areas with extremely large crowds and/or street protests.
  - Avoid touching suspicious objects and never accept gifts or requests to deliver items from unknown individuals.
  - Keep abreast of the latest news from official news outlets with regard to the areas which you plan to visit.
  - Report suspicious activity by dialing 066 and informing local officials.
  - When in doubt, do not hesitate to contact the Inter-American Conference on Social Security at (55) 5377-4700.

In an emergency or in the event you are detained, you have the right to contact your nation's embassy or consulate in Mexico.

The Inter-American Conference on Social Security, through its Financial and Administrative Affairs Division and/or Technical Secretariat, will provide any support or advice which may be needed by the Membership during their stay in Mexico.

A person in a light blue shirt is handing a blue passport to another person. The passport has the word "PASSPORT" visible on its cover. In the foreground, there is an open photo album with several photos of landscapes and buildings. The scene is set on a white table. A semi-transparent blue banner is overlaid across the middle of the image, containing the text "Mexican visa information".
